Khmer Communist forces on January 14 maintained their hold on villages with three miles of Phnom Penh's Pocheutong airport despite heavy government air strikes and artillery fire. Farther north, elements of the Cambodian Army's 7th Division registered some gains in operations against Communist forces just west of Route 5.

Over 600 soldiers and civilians are missing following the capture by the Communists yesterday of the National Cement Factory near the provincial capital of Kampot. The factory had been isolated and under almost daily attack for over a month.
